

THIRD STREAM GIANTS

"The up-and-coming octet plays funk and soul like the titans of old, with thick grooves and horn blasts aplenty. The band matches the soulful baritone of Anthony Campbell—the 2003 winner of the "Today" show's "Superstar" singing competition—with slickly executed horn licks and groove-oriented compositions. What results is a spirited collision of funk, soul and R&B that can adapt to various styles and genres."

Third Stream Giants are an eight piece, high energy funk and groove ensemble. The Giants feature a super tight rhythm section with members from nationally touring acts and a superb 3-piece horn section featuring sax, trumpet, and trombone. Anthony Campbell's nationally acclaimed vocals are framed with powerful four part harmonies and the combined result of funky horn pop delights the ears and gets the bodies movin' on the dance floor.

This is a group that transcends what you typically see in live performances with a huge big band sound and a funk and groove that stylistically places Third Stream Giants in a class all by themselves. Currently, the Giants are touring extensively across the East Coast.

'Everyone on the Today Show really liked him'

-Katie Couric - CBS Host

Amazing performer! Captivating! Great entertainer and voice!

-Dana Ferrier, Dodd Auditorium

'What sets Third Stream Giants apart from your standard "let's get together and jam on some oldies" bar band is that they are unnervingly good. Their songs boast intricate and complex arrangements, and their players are more than capable of producing tight, well-crafted jams.'

-Fredericksburg.com

What a talent, a pure performer.'

-Daniel Ceo, the UMW Bullet

'[The Giants are] rekindling the fires of funk and soul, it's almost hard to believe that a band as talented as Third Stream Giants has not broken out beyond being a regional band.'

-The Free Lance-Star

'The band tends to work best with music aficionados, not casual bar crowds, but when people pay attention, their reaction is, "I haven't heard anything like that before."

-Mike Zitz, Free Lance-Star

'With the impressive and uplifting "little big band" behind him, it is Anthony Campbell's stunningly soulful baritone and high energy that will sweep you out of your mere mortal's reverie and into a Third Stream awareness of what you have been musically missing. It is with little doubt that 3SG are indeed on their way to national recognition, so catch them while you can.'
